- Why did Australia Post intervene to push the delivery of Ms Hanson's unsolicited stubby holders to households in locked-down towers in Melbourne?

- Does the delivery of these items not violate Australia Post's own rules: "D3.11 – Unsolicited indecent or offensive material Australia Post prohibits in all services unsolicited material that advises, notifies or advertises the existence or availability of indecent or offensive material"?

- How does Australia Post respond to postal workers in Victoria who claim that the ADM is making parcel backlogs worse?

- Why didn't Australia Post listen to its workers in Victoria who said that bringing in the ADM in August would make backlogs worse?

- What is Australia Post doing to support the mental health of its workers during this highly stressful and unprecedented time?

- Have workers in Victoria been threatened with disciplinary action if they take photos of parcel backlogs/safety hazards in distribution centres?
